ULI REPRESENTS A STEADFAST COMMITMENT TO RESPONSIBLE PUBLIC POLICY

ULI empowers leaders in local governments, academics and nonprofit organizations to envision, build, and sustain successful 21st-century communities. As a non-partisan, 501(c)(3) nonprofit research and education organization, ULI is uniquely positioned to offer land use advice that is based upon sound principles, best practices and sustainable land use policies.

PUBLIC PRIVATE PARTNERSHIPS

ULI brings together leaders and land use professionals from all disciplines involved in every sector of real estate development— both public and private —to discuss current industry trends and facilitate decision-making and problem-solving at the local level. The relationships that get built around the table at ULI lead to improved efficiency and collaboration that benefits everyone!

NEUTRAL ZONE

ULI is a non-partisan research and education organization that does not engage in advocacy. By providing public officials with access to practical information, best practices, peer networks and other educational resources, ULI provides a trustworthy place where leaders come to explore creative ideas and innovative solutions

LEARN MORE:
ULI Austin's Technical Assistance Panels leverage the vast expertise of ULI Members to provide a comprehensive analysis of a specific land use or development challenge.

EDUCATION & RESEARCH

ULI collects, analyzes and publishes data that helps leaders anticipate emerging trends and issues and explore new approaches. ULI hosts a variety of programs and forums with elected officials to inform ULI members about leaders' positions and policies impacting land use. Training and educational resources designed specifically for local public sector leaders are available through ULI.
